

Dear God, what am I supposed to do?

Human frailty and brokenness often leads man to question his own existence, purpose, and even Gods justice. His perception is often drawn from the mundane humdrum of life and webbed with its intricacies and complexities. It takes courage to raise mans thoughts from what is trivial and earthly. But Myrtle Pettit takes us in a journey to learn about the tenor of life, and how we can go through the process of finding, beholding, forgiving, loving and living. And to bring each thought on a higher note, to obtain loftier purposes and finally hold on to the grandeur of eternal promise. But we can only embrace it fully, when weve learned to let go, and let God lead the way.
