

Following Through

For 25 years Herbert Warren Wind chronicled the game of golf in his beloved essays for The New Yorker magazine. Collected here, in a newly reissued edition, are 27 of his most treasured pieces. Following Through represents 22 years of work--from 1962 to 1984--and serves as a testament to Americas greatest golf writer. A keen observer of the game, Winds writing explores character and setting as much as the game itself, with descriptions of his favorite courses, players, and tournaments. Highlights include: Winds thoughtful piece on the 50th Anniversary Masters Tournament A thrilling account of Ken Venturis win in the 64 US Open after a legendary comeback Detailed stories on modern champions and celebrated players of the past Paeans to the worlds great courses like Augusta National and the Royal Dornoch A touching eulogy for Bing Crosby from 1977, celebrating the singers contributions to the game A delightful read for long-time fans and newcomers alike, Herbert Winds Following Through is a shining example of sports writing at its absolute best.
