

Two Journeys West: Lives Made Whole Again: Two Christian Romance Novellas

A New Family Is Formed Along The Oregon Trail, is the story of a young woman who lost her parents at the start of their journey west along the Oregon Trail. Close to her as she travels along, is a group of young men and boys who had also lost their parents and had decided to make a new beginning in the west, raising cattle. While bathing at the river one day the woman hears, then sees, a baby crying and she retrieves a young Native American infant found propped up against a tree. The wagon full of brothers helps take care of the baby but they are all cautioned to keep the child a secret from the rest of the wagon train. It is very hard and all of them seek Gods help in both resolving the crisis, and keeping the child safe. The Western Mail Order Bride: Up From The South With Her Slave, is a very moving story about a rebellious and not very pleasant young woman sent out west as a mail order bride, and forced by her aunt to take along her sick slave so that the slave can breathe in some better air, and hopefully, get better.

They both find far, far more than they bargained for in a kind and Christian rancher, a stage coach driver, a helpful doctor, and one wonderful surprise at the end.
