

21 Coaching Tips: From a Player's Perspective: The Player Tell All On What High School Coaching Should Really Be

Have you ever wondered as a coach what exactly is running through players minds throughout a season or throughout a practice even? Have you ever wanted their advice on how to coach, or how they thought coaching should be done, but are too afraid to lose their respect if you ask? What if you could get into the mind of a high school player and see exactly what they thought was the right way for a coach to do his job. How much more effective of a coach could you be if you could open the door into a players mind and saw how he thinks? My name is Stephen J. Michelle and I would like to share with you all of these things, from my view-point as a player. See exactly how my teammates and I thought during the season as to what the coach was doing right and wrong. See what we think you should be doing as a coach in all aspects of coaching. You will see what we think you should be doing in regards to motivation, different tactics on how to get the most out of your players, time management, and so much more!
